Founder Chairman, Christmas Cracker Trust Charitable Trust	1989-1997
I set this charity up from scratch. We used innovative ideas to mobilise over 50,000 young people in the UK to raise over £5 million for relief and development projects mainly in the developing world. Young people gained awareness of developing world issues and basic business skills. Innovative ideas have included running nearly 100 special event radio stations with licences purchased from the Radio Authority (many of the young people involved have gone on to pursue careers in broadcasting); running Eat Less Pay More crackerterias and Really Useful Stores and The Cracker Newspapers . We were the first charity that used the franchising concept to run a "virtual" charity outsourcing almost all operations and keeping overheads to a minimum. In addition, we encouraged the young people in their fundraising efforts by raising sponsorship separately and disbursing everything raised during the project itself.
The Princes Trust	1995
